Housing Policy Debate

Housing Policy Debate is published quarterly. The goal of this journal is to provide insightful discussion and original research on a broad range of housing and community development issues. Recent articles have explored the challenges facing public housing, the future of American cities, the link between housing and neighborhood quality, and the ways in which growth management practices impact the supply of affordable housing.

Housing Policy Debate regular issues are divided into three sections: Forum, Articles, and Current Issues. The Forum section features informative debate among leading experts on timely topics through a lead article and responding comment. The Articles section presents policy analysis and research, and in Current Issues authors have the opportunity to present their ideas on issues in housing, community development, and finance. Articles in the Forum and Articles sections undergo a double-blind review by members of the Fannie Mae Foundation Housing Research Advisory Board and other respected scholars.
